ABOUT KOSHA DILLZ

Rami Even-Esh, better known to the world as Kosha Dillz, is a NJ emcee by way of Los Angeles born to Israeli parents. When he grew up, he knew only a few things; Wrestling, Soccer, and competition. Rami spent many summers in Israel with his grandparents speaking Hebrew (his first language), and would come home to public schools with a diverse crew of friends. When hip hop and rap battles came into his life, he took up on the name Kosher Dillz, only to change it to KD FLOW after being embarrassed of his "jewish-ness" on stage. Once hitting in the world of Division I Wrestling at Rutgers University, drug addiction soon took him over and he succumbed to various arrests and felonies that landed him behind bars, only to be dipping and dodging parole and probation officers once he was released. KD FLOW was different than he is today.

While behind bars, Rami demanded to see a Rabbi since other inmates were seeing Priests, so on Rosh Hashanah, he met with a Rabbi for the first time ever. After his final arrest in July of 2004, he embarked on a road to regain control of his life without drugs, and began pursuing a career in music. Due to the severeness of his drug related crimes, he was unable to work in many jobs unless it was a rehab, so he began his career in music, retaking the name Kosha Dillz. The idea was that no matter how distant he was from being a Jew, his name would bring him closer to his true identity. He has since become a 2016 Billboard charting artist., played 41 dates 2015 Vans Warped Tour for Half a million people nation wide, done a TedX talk on Freestyle Rap, became a playable video game character in NBA 2k11, performed in Hebrew on the BET Awards and also landed a song in 2012's most successful Bud Light Superbowl campaign. Want more? He even had his website hacked by ISIS. He rapped at shows with every rapper new and old, from Macklemore and Asap Rocky to Wu Tang Clan and Kendrick Lamar.

next to friends like Matisyahu, Rami has created a niche for himself with Hebrew Spanish and English rhymes, and tells the world about his different experiences with hatred (of himself and of Jews.) After people began to boycott him and heckle him for who he was, he realized his story needed to be told. With multiple components from addiction and anti-semitism to improvisation and entrepreneurship, Kosha Dillz has developed various programs from full on concerts, rap class and anti-hate workshops to documentary film screenings.

PERFORMANCE PROGRAMS

1. KOSHA DILLZ CONCERT - A Great Show Of Rapping ,Singing,Dancing, English And Hebrew Rhymes With Some Spanish Too And Lots Of Israeli Sampled Music Into Amazing Beats (Great For Yom Haatzmaut, Israel Week, Or Hannukah, Purim, Sukkot + Any Other Reason)

5 FUN FACTS ABOUT KOSHA

- In 2012, his song "cellular phone" landed on a Bud Light Here We Go Superbowl commercial which was the shot heard around the world. It was the first time independent artist who no synch representation landed the biggest license of the year next to Kanye West earning over $100,000. It was rated as the #1 super bowl commercial on USA Today.com. (The night before it happened, he did a show for $150 in Lawrence Kansas and got his $150 hard drive stolen.)
- Kosha Dillz rapped outside the 2015 Grammy's because he couldn't get tickets to see Jesse Shatkin (his producer of 2 albums). He ended up landing a $50,000 Chevrolet commercial. He tried to buy tickets for $300 but was refunded money by his friend the day before.
- He regularly teaches "how to become a jewish rapper in 45 minutes" classes to anyone who wants to learn them, and is sought after as inspirational speaker for his experience with addiction in the music industry, and how to deal with Anti-semitism as an Israeli American Rapper. He has been the self proclaimed #1 Jewish rapper in Korea Town Los Angeles for the past 5 years.
- He has been shooting a documentary about his life as musician with Darah Golub for 5 years. Kosha Dillz is Everywhere: The Hustle to Happiness.
- When he isn't touring, he regularly works out at a wrestling club. He once played basketball with Ron Artest at 24 hr fitness.
